Managing the ietf@ietf.org Mailing List

- We are considering approaches to manage perceived problems on this list
- Current tools include ADs managing discussions, sergeant-of-arms dealing with list abuse, and posting rights suspension
- High-volume list with some problems
- Considering adding facilitators

IESG Telechat Participation Experiment

- Opening our telechats for anyone to follow
- Already open for document shepherds
- Potential further interest (e.g., authors, transparency)
- An experiment; to end at IETF 91
- Determine if there's interest and/or if it works in practice

Role of Standards and Open Source

- Some discussion of this in the IETF and IESG
- Running code is obviously a key ingredient in the IETF, but not only code
- IETF and other standards organisations are needed when there is a need for agreement across different implementations
- Complementary with open source efforts
- Use the right tool for the right task

Role of Standards and Open Source, Continued

- World moves faster, and SDOs need to be able to accommodate for that pace
- IESG would like to underline that
  - WGs can be created when there is agreement to do so, physical BOF meetings not always required
  - WGs should have solution work from day 1
  - IETF work should respect rough consensus
  - Good experiences from efforts with weekly schedules
- OPS area leading some trials (on data models)

Appeals

No appeals

Mic Queue Experiment

- Add yourself to the mic queue in Etherpad
  - A topic and your name
  - Or your name under the current topic
  - Jabber and real queuing as backup, if needed
- Be at any mic when it is your turn
